Ten Years of Sabrina York

Her Royal Hotness, Sabrina York, is the New York Times and USA Today Bestselling author of hot, humorous romance, is celebrating ten years of publishing! Her titles range from sweet & sexy to scorching romance in all genres.

HOW DID IT ALL BEGIN?

But it almost didn't happen. When she was in preschool, it was discovered that Sabrina was severely dyslexic. They said she would never learn to read or write. They were wrong. To give her daughter a love of books, Sabrina's mother, Mom, read her one chapter every night from the Little House on the Prairie series, even though child development experts agree, this is torture. Impatient as she was/is/ever shall be, Sabrina soon learned to read, just so she didn't have to wait for the rest of the story. When she won an essay contest on the third grade, she vowed to be a best selling author by the age of 21. What she forgot, apparently, was that to do this, she had to actually write something. Life went on. Twenty-one came and went. And then, in 1999, after receiving her Masters Degree in A Very Boring Subject, she rekindled her love of romance by reading The Inscription by Pam Binder and remembered the joy of writing. This time, she actually persevered and after many years and over 10,000 hours of practice, her first book, Adam's Obsession released on April 4, 2012, mostly because of the friends she made in the Seattle chapter of Romance Writers of America.

After 10 years, her favorite memories of this adventure are of meeting and hanging out with readers and other authors. "What a gift they are, the people I've met through this," she says. And gratitude is the watchword for a dream come true. She hopes her books can elicit a laugh, a tear and a healing for her readers, in honor of the authors who have given her joy in the past.

Sabrina lives in the Pacific Northwest with her husband of 30 years and a very drooly Rottweiler. Her son is grown up and needs to call his mother more often. He conveniently works as a chemist at a major US winery and occasionally delivers cases of wine to his parents as though that could make up for not calling.

Visit her webpage at www.sabrinayork.com to check out her books, excerpts and contests. Sabrina is represented by Nicole Resciniti of the Seymour Agency

A HYBRID AUTHOR

Hybrid authors work with publishers and also self-publish. There are pros and cons to each option. Sabrina uses both as a tool to maximize her platform, increase discoverability and give free books to readers. She has published five Regency/Highlander romances with St. Martin's Press (one of which garnered a RITA nomination) as well as a historical anthology, a trio of cowboys with Berkley/InterMix Romance, a Hot Highlander for Hachette/James Patterson Bookshots, fifteen steamy romances for Ellora's Cave—most of which are now available from Sabrina York LLC—many novellas, a fluttering of anthologies and she has self-published over 40 romances through Sabrina York Books.

ON THE HORIZON

Watch for a new series of cowboy romances (set in Eastern Washington) coming in 2021 from Harlequin Special Edition! Sabrina is also working on several new historical romances, that time-travel series so many of you have asked after, and a whole new line of non-romance romps. Oh, and a few screenplays.

AWARDS AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Over the past decade, Sabrina has had many self-published books hit the #1 romance spot on Amazon (most recently Stone Hard SEALs Duet, Rebound and Dark Fancy). Collaborations with other authors, such as Cowboy 12 Pack, 12 Alarm Cowboys, Hot Alpha SEALs and Dukes by the Dozen have made the New York Times and USA Today Bestseller lists.

Sabrina's recent awards include: 2018 Holt Medallion Winner, 2017 RITA Nominee, and 2017 National Excellence in Romance Fiction Award Winner. Previous accolades include: EDITOR'S NOTE: CUT FOR SPACE. Read them here if you wish...

TEN TIARAS

On April 4, 2021, Sabrina will give away ten tiaras in celebration of ten wonderful years of writing for you. Don't miss the opportunity to enter and win!

Check out Sabrina's Current Giveaways here!

Author Breaks Own Website

In a fit of attempted competence, author Sabrina York innocently updated a plug-in on her website, just as she'd sent out an email to over 10,000 readers, inviting them to visit that site to check out an on sale anthology and enter a tiara contest. Unbeknownst to any normal human person who has never gone to computer school, updating a plug-in when said plug-in now uses a language several generations ahead of the PHP on the website's outdated server will cause irreconcilable conflicts, shut the entire site down, save this error message:

WARNING! Do not read or try to understand this message as it may cause your brain to explode and Sabrina York LLC categorically disavows responsibility for exploded brains.

Parse error: syntax error, unexpected T_STRING in /home/content/17/8739917/html/wp-content/plugins/google-analytics-for-wordpress/includes/gutenberg/headline-tool/headline-tool.php on line 3

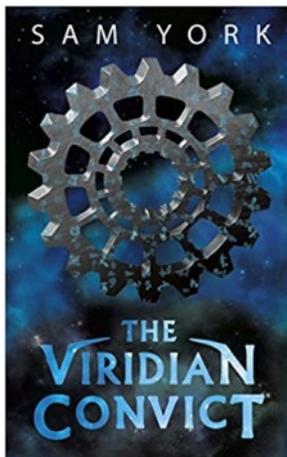

Super, extraordinarily and painful long-story-short, aside from the PHP issue, there was a swathe of malware all over the site. However, within minutes of figuring out the real problem (which is half the solution in most cases), the site was fixed and readers are now free to enter the giveaway and order Say Yes to the Scot on sale for $0.99 for the month of February.

Needless to say, it was an extremely stressful couple of days. According to the author, who has vowed never to update anything on the website again, so help her God, "The whole SNAFU—and I mean SNAFU in the truest military sense—had a very lovely silver lining when over a hundred readers reached out to offer help or commiseration. What a lovely gift," she continued. "To be reminded that people are out there reading my books. I think authors sometimes forget that, because we're sitting there writing in our PJs and bunny slippers with no human interaction (unless you count the guy who comes to spray the trees once a month). Especially NOW, during a pandemic."

Romance Author Loses Mind, Writes Sci-Fi by Mistake

It's always sad when an author goes off the rails. Especially when she should be working on the rest of the Tryst Island stories or finishing the damn Dundragon Trilogy already. But Sabrina York has ADD and a love for Sci-Fi. Aside from that, the whole book is already written, so the damage is already done. She's promised NOT to write another Sci-Fi until she gets caught up with her romance to-do list, has outlined the two women's fiction (read: non-romance) romps her agent is asking for, and has completed the screenplay outlines for REDACTED, REDACTED and TITLE REDACTED. Anyway, if you, or anyone in your world loves quirky Sci-Fi, you can learn more here.

Oh, by the way, readers have suggested you flip to the back and read the glossary first so your brain doesn't explode. DISCLAIMER: Sabrina York LLC cannot be held responsible for any exploded brains.

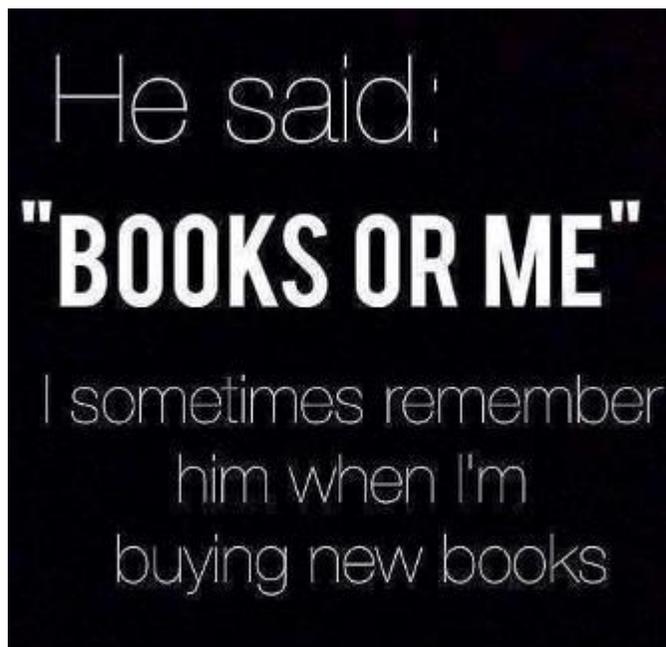

Viridian Convict

Being the only human on a moon full of criminal aliens isn't all it's cracked up to be. In fact, it sucks rocks. But Tig has managed to survive by working for Granny, the Creel mob boss who is as badass as his name is ridiculous.

When Granny gives Tig a simple pick-up and deliver job, things get decidedly more complicated. He is approached by his nemesis, an agent of the Fed—the governing body of the Known Universe—and ordered to escort the package to the Barrens, far away from Granny's aegis.

Shit goes sideways when the package he's supposed to deliver turns out to be a gorgeous, tantalizing Seraph Novitiate who has her own agenda. One that doesn't include an Earthie guard dog.

In a case of lose/lose/lose, Tig struggles to keep himself and this truculent Angel safe as they run from a veritable army of blood-thirsty aliens. As they descend deeper into danger, a mystery unfolds. To Tig's dismay, seemingly disparate pieces begin to fit together into a much larger,

Dear Sabrina

Where the readers get their questions answered!

Dear Sabrina,
I really enjoyed Laird of her Heart, your highland time travel romance and am eagerly awaiting the second book. When is that coming out?
TimeTravelFan

Dear TimeTravelFan,
I am very sorry for the delay. I could go on and on about how busy I've been dealing with personal & family issues and the fact that I've been working on contracted projects (which have to take priority so I can feed my family), but I hate excuses. Her

Hot Highlander is two chapters away from being finished. Thanks for letting me know it matters to you. That alone lifts it up on my to do list, because, let's be honest, I'm really writing to make you happy. In the meantime, here's the cover-to-be. You are welcome to BUG ME if I don't get it done by your birthday.
Love Sabrina

Dear Sabrina,
I LOVED your early erotic releases like Pushing her Buttons, Extreme Couponing and Rising Green. Why can't I find them anymore?
SomeLikeltHotter

Dear Hot Reader,
I love those stories too, but because they contained BDSM scenes, they were too steamy for Amazon and some other platforms and as a result, I ended up in the "dungeon" which, by the way, is a real thing. When you're in the dungeon, nothing an author posts is publicly visible and readers have to use a direct link to see that author's books. I have over 40 books published, but none of them were publicly visible because of these few books.

Needless to say, it was not great for business. I'd be more than happy to make these stories available to readers who can, not only handle the heat, but revel in it.
Love Sabrina

Dear Sabrina,
What happened to the Elite Elements collections? They're not on Amazon any more.
GimmieMySEALS

Dear SEAL Lover,
The Elite collection series was a collaboration of various authors to tell intertwined action adventure stories with an overall story arc. Three collections were published, all leading up to the inevitable capture of the evil Red Wolf. We all knew that, eventually, we'd have to close them down, because of the time it takes to manage monthly payments to all the authors as well as the annual taxes (blech). That, by the way, is why most collections eventually close down. It's not worth the complicated upkeep once sales taper. As soon as our rights reverted back to us, some of the authors decided to republish their stories. I did a rewrite of mine—because I didn't want them to get Bottom Drawered like Rising Green and the like (mentioned above). In the edit, I pulled out the parts of the book that referred DEEPLY to the other stories in the collection (so the reader would not be confused) and repackaged the new collection as Elite Warriors.

For those of you who want to know what happened to Red Wolf, it's in the last story of the last collection and was written by Jennifer Kacey.
Sabrina

Dear Sabrina,
I finished Bridgerton on NetFlix and am in withdrawal. What do you recommend?
Sincerely,
RegencyAddict

Dear Normal Person with Excellent Taste,
Of course you are feeling lost after the final scene of Bridgerton. I'm right there with you. I am so happy for Julia Quinn and thankful to Shonda Rhimes for bringing romance into the mainstream, and in such an elegant way. I am also a fan of the series' alternative worldview and would love to see, support and contribute future efforts to serve as an ally to my FOC (Friends of Color—is that a thing? I hope so.)

TOO MANY QUEENS IN THE KITCHEN?

Rumor has it multiple ladies plan to attend the Whitwell Annual Masquerade dressed in the same costume! As astute readers may already have surmised, considering the theme of the ball is Midsummer Night's Dream, that we shall see a plethora of Queen Titanias. The question is: Who shall wear it best???

CELEBRITY SPOTTING AT THE WHITWELL BALL?

I am not one to spill the tea, especially NOT about author inspiration, but a little birdie has informed this Pampered Plume that the rumor may, in fact be true, that in her coming Regency romance, One Simple Kiss from the A Midsummer Night's Romance anthology, Rose and Eddard de Vreis, were indeed inspired by Rose and Ed from 90 Day Fiancé. But is the rumor true? You, dear reader, will have to decide for yourself now that you're In The Know!
